A luncheon to benefit Connections

INSPIRE will mark its seventh year in 2024 and will be returning after a 3.5-year COVID hiatus. While serving as a fundraiser for the organization, the event also promotes learning and advocacy around the topics of homelessness, affordable housing, and poverty.

Our dynamic speakers will discuss how barriers to affordable housing increase homelessness and perpetuate racial inequity. Topics will include zoning, redlining, and the devaluation of Black-owned properties and its negative economic and social effects.

Benjamin Oreskes covers state and national politics for the Los Angeles Times. He graduated from Northwestern’s Medill School of Journalism in 2015. In 2021, the Los Angeles Press Club named him print journalist of the year honoring “his on-the-ground reporting of various homelessness issues during the pandemic.” In 2023, Oreskes and his colleagues won the Pulitzer Prize for breaking news.

Andre M. Perry is a Senior Fellow at Brookings Metro, a scholar-in-residence at American University, and a professor of practice of economics at Washington University. A nationally known and respected commentator on race, structural inequality, and education, Perry is the author of the book “Know Your Price: Valuing Black Lives and Property in America’s Black Cities.”
